Software for the Bearings and Transmissions industry

Efficient stock management, reactive pricing and boosted sales

We have many customers that supply the Bearings and Transmissions industry who are already benefitting from prof.ITplus.

Our Business Software system improves the visibility and clarity of hundreds of transactions and gives businesses complete control over their core processes. Not only does prof.ITplus manage everything to do with your products from stock management, through to pricing, sales analysis and customer relationship management, but you can also store all key documents and email communication relating to a product and/or a customer in one central location giving complete visibility. This enables you to quickly access supplier stock codes, pricing information and quotes when needed, at the click of a button!

At a glance

-  Fast kitting and de-kitting facilities
-  Manage complex pricing structures
-  Respond faster to changing market conditions
-  Record all stock movements using barcode scanners
-  Upload spreadsheets of new pricing & supplier stock codes
